100 Trivia Questions & Answers

The MojQuiz Reference List

2026 EDITION

MojQuiz

mojquiz.com

June 2026

This is the MojQuiz reference list — our canonical set of 100 trivia questions, and the one we point people to when they ask for a single, well-rounded place to start. Every question has been fact-checked against multiple sources, and the categories are balanced on purpose: roughly equal weight given to general knowledge, science, history, geography, sports and current affairs. Each year we re-verify the answers against current data; the 2026 review pass updated population, head-of-state, and recent-events questions, but the bulk of the list stays steady year to year.

If you're putting together a trivia night and want a default 30/40/30 split across easy, medium and hard, this is the list to pull from. If you're studying for a competitive exam, the questions here won't be exam-specific, but they make a solid baseline of the kinds of facts that come up reliably. And if you're just curious and have ten minutes, cover the answers and work down the list — that's how the testing effect actually does its work. In a widely cited study published in Science, Roediger and Karpicke (2006) found students who actively recalled answers retained around 61% of material a week later, versus roughly 40% for those who simply reread. Cover the answers, work through 10 at a time, and you'll feel the difference inside a week.

How this list differs from our other two 100-question sets. Our most-asked list is compiled from search-trend data — it follows demand. Our 2026 edition is refreshed quarterly and tilts toward recent events. This list, by contrast, is the editorial baseline: balanced, conservative, and stable. If you can only read one, start here.

Categories covered: General Knowledge, Science, History, Geography, Sports, Current Affairs.
